Junooniyat movie trailer in hindi, Emissions from the marine industry have increased dramatically over the last twenty five years. This has occurred as a result of oil production and processing of oil spills from tankers and production platforms. Data from the Statistical Database maintained by the Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs (DEFRA) shows that between 1975 and 2006, total emissions from the UK's marine industry more than doubled from 9,000 tonnes of CO2 per year to 18,000 tonnes per year. Over the same period, national totals increased from 34,700 to 53,000 tonnes. The primary source of pollution is CO2 emissions. However, nitrogen and phosphorus emissions also contribute significantly to ocean acidification. Over the past twenty five years, emissions have continued to increase, in total by 113% by 2006. Of this, 47% (in 1994) can be attributed to oil and gas production and processing. The remainder is due to the processing of other hydrocarbons. Emissions from Total Petroleum The fuels that have contributed to the growing levels of marine emissions are natural gas, fuel oil and LPG. In 1990, emissions from natural gas, fuel oil and LPG came to 6,400 tonnes of CO2 per year. In 2006, this had increased to 15,000 tonnes per year. Emissions from both natural gas and fuel oil have continued to increase, whereas emissions from LPG have slightly decreased. Between 1990 and 2006, diesel fuel consumed by vessels has
